Elevated Household Risk Exposure

Your home, income, and family protection may have high-priority areas to review.

Multiple areas may expose your family financially if income stopped, housing costs continued, or the policy did not match the real need. Because keeping the home may be difficult but manageable, the mortgage protection number should be checked against real expenses. Income interruption answer: not a major concern. Current income protection confidence: i have never reviewed it. You indicated your family may need 5–10 years of financial breathing room. You identified spouse/partner only as people who could feel the impact first.

This score suggests your household could feel pressure quickly if income stopped and housing costs continued.

The goal is not fear. The goal is to see whether the home, income, and people depending on you would have enough time and money to stay stable.

If Income Suddenly Stopped Tomorrow

This is not a prediction. It is a simple pressure timeline showing where many households start to feel stress.

Mortgage + Income Protection Breakdown

This breakdown summarizes the main protection categories used in your score. It is meant to help prioritize what to review first.

Main purpose

Identify where your home, income, work benefits, and family stability may deserve review before your family has to rely on the coverage.

Recommended use

Use this report as a starting point, then confirm coverage amount, policy type, income interruption benefits, beneficiary details, and mortgage protection needs.

Mortgage Survivability

Checks whether the home could stay stable if income stopped.

REVIEW SOON

Income Interruption

Reviews whether illness, injury, disability, recovery time, or work disruption could pressure the household.

REVIEW SOON

Work / State Benefit Confidence

Highlights whether employer benefits or California disability benefits are understood clearly enough to rely on.

REVIEW SOON

Policy Fit

Highlights whether the current coverage type matches the actual goal.

REVIEW SOON

Most families do not realize these gaps until life forces the issue. I can walk through this with you and turn the score into a clear mortgage, income, and household protection review.

Recommended next step

I'll walk through your income, mortgage, family obligations, current coverage, work/state benefits, and policy type so we can turn this into a clear protection review.

Common Household Protection Blind Spots

These are common areas people miss when they only look at whether they "have a policy."

Employer coverage can be temporary

Work benefits may change if employment changes.

Disability benefits may not replace everything

State or employer benefits may not fully support the household.

Old policies can fall behind real life

Children, mortgage balances, income, and debt can change the need.

Recovery time can create pressure

Being alive but unable to work can still stress the home budget.

What This Could Mean In Real Life

1

Could the household stay stable?

If income stops, the mortgage or rent may become the first major stability issue.

2

What if you are alive but unable to work?

Illness, injury, disability, or recovery time may pressure the household before a death benefit is relevant.

3

Would the policy actually do the job?

The amount and type of coverage should match the real purpose of the policy.

What this report does not mean

- Not a coverage determination
- Not a financial plan
- Not a replacement for policy language
- Not an underwriting decision
- Not a guarantee of eligibility
- Only a starting point for review
